March 7: PENNSYLVANIA FOODS: FORAGING OVER TIME

Presented by Dr. David Foster

Professor of Biology & Environmental Science, Messiah College

Come see, taste and experience how native people used the plants of Pennsylvania forests for food, fiber and medicine. A local author and forager, Dr. Foster has more than 20 years experience in our forests and will take us through a sensory journey of these memorable plants, and discuss their ecology today. Dr. Foster's two books will be available for sale, and he will sign them after the program.

March 14: PENNSYLVANIA FORESTS OVER TIME

Presented by Dr. Beth Brantley

Associate Teaching Professor of Forestry, Mont Alto Campus PSU

Pennsylvania forests are continuously changing. This program will review historical influences on species composition, the current status of various plant communities, and trends that may extend into our future. Dr. Brantley will focus on the special trees of the South Mountain area in this presentation.

March 21: DINOSAURS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Presented by Dr. Steve Jasinski

Curator of Paleontology and Geology, State Museum of Pennsylvania

Was Tyrannosaurus rex roaming Pennsylvanian forests 65 million years ago? Find out when Dr. Steven Jasinski discusses dinosaurs in Pennsylvania. The program explores what we already know about dinosaurs in Pennsylvania, and how we have been able to determine our present level of knowledge. He will also talk about what we can, and hope to, determine in the future.
